

ALOUETTE GENTILLE ALOUETTE

performance with voice and wearable sculptures in wood, straw, feathers and mixed materials, 12 performers, 7.30 min, 2023

A subtle and imperceptible bond.

A nest, an enclosure, a costume, a house, an organ, a sex, a lair. Difficult to get out of it completely, to move away, to detach. The sky scares, endless blue. An apparent flight binds to a body. Also apparent. Voices and hand dances follow the little ones. Shy little ones don't know the world and its meaning. To the sweet sound of the melody they entrust their going. Fly small, the meaning is insignificant. Fly and enjoy this gift never given. Mommy watches you, fall and rise. A cruel mother, cruel nature. She has to go back to the kitchen. Alone. But she keeps singing, she wants you to fly.

Lark, how beautiful you are, I will pluck you. I will pluck your wings and your head. I will tear off your beak and legs. Little lark how pretty you are, keep singing and I will pluck you.

A thin and imperceptible wall.
